Abstract

Many organizations in the universe devote their efforts to protecting human rights and ending infringement of human rights or abuse of human rights. Number of human rights organizations maintain extensive websites documenting violations and calling for corrective action, both at a governmental and grass-roots level. Public support and condemnation of abuses is important to their success, as human rights organizations are most effective when their calls for reform are backed by strong public advocacy.

In the era of proliferation and with the development of the one global society it felt compulsory to confirm the liability in respect of an assurance of Human Rights in state boundaries. Despite the United Nations and Regional arrangements for the same it is impossible to have a clear picture of the status of the state’s obligation. Civil Society has area which possess an area equal to but aloof from the state where citizens related in accordance with their own interest where impartial or detached bodies are required for proper watch on each and every thing. NGOs contribute and plays by far the dynamic, positive and active parts of civil society organizations. The flourishing growth Non Government Organizations over the past three decades have given them seldom important role and function and led them to occupy a distinctive sector within the broad category Civil society organizations. Today it is believed that without the active involvement of NGOs the UN human rights system would not function well. The activities of human rights NGOs are numerous. To build a culture of rights and encourage the enforcement of human rights both at national and international level, an approach described above has a great contribution besides the efforts of the Government.

People’s Union for Civil Liberties:
It is a prominent civil rights organization in India. It was formed in 1976 by veteran socialist and campaign leader Jaya Prakash Narayan, who launched it as the People's Union for Civil Liberties and Democratic Rights
(PUCLDR), it was originally intended to be an organization free from political ideologies, bringing those concerned about defending civil liberties and human rights from different backgrounds onto a common platform.

PEOPLE'S UNION FOR DEMOCRATIC RIGHTS

This came into existence in the year 1976-77 as the Delhi unit of a larger national forum, and became PUDR on 1 February, 1981. In the last two and a half decades of its existence the organisation has taken up hundreds of instances of violations of democratic rights, covering most parts of the country and involving the rights of many sections of society. PUDR conducts investigations, issues statements, distributes leaflets, organizes public meetings, demonstrations and dharnas, and fights legal cases to highlight the violation of people's rights, and to help towards their redressal. PUDR also takes up issues of general importance that affect the rights of people through general campaigns, publications and legal interventions. These include: gender equality; rights of forest-dwellers and forest policy; working class rights; agrarian conflict; caste oppression; deaths, rapes and torture in police custody; and undemocratic legislation, in particular the various incarnations of the 'terrorist act' (TADA and POTA) etc.

BANDHUA MUKTI MORCHA

It is based in New Delhi, and it was established in the year 1981 by the hands of Swami Agnivesh who was the chairman of the same. Bonded labour was legally eliminated from India in 1976 but is was not fully abolished or outrage. Estimates of the problem depends upon the circumstances of the cases. A major problem with the boded child labour in the silk industry was reported by 'Human Right Watch' which leads to abolishing of child labour form India by introducing and passing of legislation to abolish child labour in India through 'Child Labour (Prohibition and Regulation Act 1986)'

Role of NGOs in protecting Human Right through Judiciary and National Human Rights Commission.

Unless there is a positive and supportive response from the judicial official or judiciary Non-governmental organization cannot function as desired. NGOs play an adaptive role in the protection and development of human rights and a right to life guided under article 14 of Indian Constitution. An assistance and guidance or advice or counseling is done with the help of the reputed and well known human rights activists.

For promotion and protection of human rights Non Government Organisation have filled cases, writ petitions, PIL that is public Interest Litigation on behalf of victim and/or on behalf of victim. The NGOs have fought against the system of bonded lab our, fake encounters by police, protection of women children's rights, custodial violence and custodial death, prevention of torture and other in human practices. The judiciary has passed appropriate order and given compensation to the victims on a petition by the NGOs. The National Human Rights Commission encourages NGOs in the of human rights. The NGOs also take up cases of violation to the NHRC and state human rights commissions.

- Role as 'Social Wroker' - Charity is an important and key action which expected from where relief and charity are key actions from the NGO. NGOs in this role can be seen as initiating internal based programs and various live projects.

- Role as 'Mediator' - In this social action communication skill is an important role plays under it for development and promotion and active participation in exercising this rights.. NGOs in this role can be seen as participating or taking up external programs and projects.

- Role as 'Consultant' - Local expert plays secondary important role in supply of information through collaborative programme. Non Governmental Organization plays a vital role in respect of dissemination of information..

ADVOCACY FOR AND WITH THE POOR

In some of the cases Non Governmental Organization can act as ombudsmen for the needy and poor community and makes possible to influence state policies and development on their behalf. Pilot project is proved to be an important in this respect, by arranging or organizing public talk and to get involved the community in it. It is possible only through formulation of government policy and plans, to make research accessible to the public. Thus NGOs play roles from advocates for the poor to implementers of government programs; from agitators and critics to partners and advisors; from sponsors of pilot projects to mediators.

Role of NGO at International level in protecting human right.

‘Amnesty International was awarded a Nobel Prize to Peace in 1977’ At the International Level Amnesty International is one of the known organization (NGO) works to improve and protect the status of human rights. This Organization is dedicated to publishing infringement of human rights, particularly freedom of speech and religion and right of political dissent. It also works for the release of political prisoners and, when necessary, for the relief of their families. For its commendable services in the field of human rights, Amnesty International is one of the known organization (NGO) works to improve and protect the status of human rights.

Following are some important case studies in respect of Protection of Human Rights by the help of Judiciary.

- Vishaka V/s State of Rajasthan & Ors
- Bandhua Mukti Morcha vs Union Of India & Ors (16 December 1983)
- Saheli V/S Commissioner of Police
- Union for Democratic Rights V/s Police commissioner Delhi, head quarters 1989 4 SCC 730.
- Peoples’ Union For Democratic Rights V. State Of Bihar & Ors (19 December 1986)

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

Peace, development and human rights are essentially inter-related, inter-dependent and indivisible.” – Theo van Boven

NGO mobilize public opinion and contributes a lot to the society by pressurizing the government on certain issues, such as protection of prisoners rights, torture etc. They approach the judiciary on behalf of poor people who otherwise have no access to justice and ask for submission of certain reports and play a special role especially in the developing countries for the development of human rights. The Non Governmental organizations work from elemental level to the national and international level in the protection of human rights. NGO plays a role like a voice of the community as most of the community are not able to express their views and opinion about the things. With the help of judiciary or by hand to hand cooperation with judiciary to achieve the goal. Each and every human is designated to have certain basic human rights which are accessible to them without fear or frown and some sort of human rights are protected by the United Nations and its agencies.

In India human rights are protected and saved by the judiciary, human rights commissions, besides it these organizations the Non Governmental organizations also have an important role in protection of human rights as discussed above.

Frequent programme in respect of awareness of human rights should be initiated by the NGO rather than yearly or bimonthly NGOs also need to get more aid both from foreign and within India which will be useful to carry out their cause. NGO should define their area of activities or goal for protection or promotion of the human rights or to achieve their immediate goal. A strategic thinking should be applied wherever possible on a long term basis. Every NGO must have their own ideas and clear goes including priorities to be achieved along with the work plan for individual and staff activities.
